Drowning Accident

While swimming in the lake above the boat houses, Benjamin McAllister was drowned Saturday evening about 7 o'clock. He had eaten supper and immediately gone in swimming. The boys reported that he was taken with cramps and cried for help and went down. Homer Truman at his home on Water street heard the cries, ran to the lake, dove and brought him up. He was taken ashore, rolled and given artificial respiration by Homer Truman and Tholy Jenkins under the direction of Bartlett and Trufant's directions. The boys worked faithfully but to no avail as apparently life had gone when it was taken from the water.

(OXFORD COUNTY, ME.)

JULY 31, 1914, NORWAY, MAINE.

VOLUME XLV.

Mr. Alma W. Bailey.

Mrs. Alma W. Bailey passed away at her late home on Main street after a long illness, Saturday, July 25th. Mrs. Bailey has been in failing health for about six months and death was due to pneumonia. She was born in Hebron 59 years ago and was the daughter of Andrew P. and Betsey W. (Paunce) Greenleaf. She was educated in the public schools of Norway and worked for many years in the shoe factory.

Mrs. Bailey was a member of the Congregational church and a devoted worker in all its branches until failing health caused her to give up active work. She was also a member of the Norway Grange and of the New Idea Society.

Mrs. Bailey was survived by a brother, Elgin A. Greenleaf, of Norway, who is proprietor of the sporting camps at Sugar Island.

The funeral was held Monday morning, July 27th, at her late residence on Main street. The Rev. R. J. Bruce was the officiating clergyman, and a selection was rendered by Mrs. J. J. Bruce. Interment took place at Pine Grove cemetery.

Annual Grange Field Day. The annual field day and basket picnic by the Oxford County Pomona Grange will be held at the fair grounds between Norway and South Paris Thursday, August 13th.

The speakers will include C. S. Stetson, Master of the State Grange; C. O. Purinton, State Lecturer; C. M. and "High Priest"; together with other literary features.

The music for the day will be furnished by the Hebron band. At noon coffee will be furnished on the grounds. The field day is for everybody whether grangers or not.

Veranda Club Notes. The Veranda Club met with Mrs. Cassie Starbird on Thursday evening July 23rd. There was a good attendance and the hour previously to the business meeting as well as the one at its close was spent in social conversation.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Jennie Spring. The club voted to hold their annual children's day outing at Central Park on Thursday August 13th with an all day session. Hot coffee will be served free to all who wish, each to provide themselves with drinking milk and spoon.

At the close of the meeting the hostesses assisted by Virgil Kilgore served delicious harlequin, ice cream, fancy crackers, blueberry cake and fruit.

The next meeting of the Veranda Club will be at Central Park on Thursday afternoon August 13th.

Company D Notes. The company will go into camp on the Fair Grounds. Shelter tents will be pitched and camp made for the night. The rifle range will be open Sunday to members unable to leave for other duties as well as the one at its close was spent in social conversation.

The following men have been enlisted or reenlisted: H. M. Sergt. Gerald E. Wing, private; Hugh P. Pike; Arsenic G. Blagiere; Louis N. Vigne.

IT'S A MISTAKE

Made by Norway Residents.

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other makeshifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Norway is no exception. The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Norway.

"Doan's Kidney Pills are the only kidney medicine I use and they always give me relief," says W. O. Needham, retired farmer, of Main St., Norway. "Several years ago I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. They got my kidneys working right and when that was done, the uric poison in my system was removed. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store and I know that they can be relied on."

Price 50c, at all Dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Needham had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. 30-31

THE UPLOOK.

The woods were dark and the night was black, and only an owl could see the track; Yet the cherry drive was lit by the way. Through the great pine woods as if I were day. The road and the forest and the trees. "To me as well," he replied, "and I only drive by the path in the sky." I looked above where the track lay. Rose from the road like an ebony wall. A beautiful story lane. Wound as the road wound and made it plain. And since, when the path of my life is clear. When the horrors of midnight are here below. And I see not a step of the way to go. And then I look up high, And walk on earth by the path in the sky.

ON THE FARM.

Where do quail and partridge coveys Hide themselves in hunting-time? Through the leafy branches climb! How can hunters find them? Without giving an alarm! Ask the towhee-headed youngsters Who are living on the farm. Where do violets grow the sweetest, And the maidens' hair most fine? Where do bluebirds sing in notes? Where do morning-glories twine? Where do wild flowers earliest blossom? Ask the towhee-headed youngsters Who are living on the farm. Where do health and strength together Fill the days with brimming joy? Where do simple honest pleasures Never fade away? If you'd see boys as they should be, See the towhee-headed youngsters Who are living on the farm.

Should Protect Wood Birds

It requires but a few familiar illustrations from the history of bird life in this country to prove conclusively that nearly all species of birds must have some sort of protection from man if they are to survive. The passenger pigeon, the great blue heron, the Eskimo curlew are extinct chiefly as a result of unrestrained persecution by man, and the heath hen, upland plover, egret and others have been reduced to the danger point by rapid diminution. Many other species are direct result of man's direct or indirect biological investigations of the United States whole are of the greatest value to the general agricultural interests of the country. For the instance the sharp-shinned hawk, Cooper's hawk, which prey largely upon useful birds, and certain birds that do extensive damage to farm crops—has been species have been found, through careful investigation of the contents of their stomachs, to be decidedly beneficial. Although the relation of birds to forestry has not been studied quite so carefully in this country as their relation to agriculture, yet considerable data has been compiled on this subject, and these indicate that birds in the forests are fully as useful as, and perhaps more so than, those in the cultivated fields. Among the conspicuously useful forest birds is the familiar chickadee, considerably more than one-half of whose food consists of moths, caterpillars and other harmful insects and their eggs. The woodpeckers also are great forest protectors, 70 per cent of their food consisting of animal matter, largely boring beetles. These birds and some others are working for us during the entire year. Other forest birds, as for instance the many species of wood warblers, the kinglets, crows, juncos, chickadees, thrushes, etc., are with us only part of the year, but during that period they are of great importance as checks upon the increase of insects injurious to forest trees. It is interesting to note that German foresters reached a conclusion some time ago, and they are now showing us how to answer the question as to what measures such birds as the chickadee, kinglet, etc., can be taken to protect and increase them. The city of Frankfurt on the Main expends about $24,000 annually in such work. An area of 244 acres adjacent to one of the forest nurseries has been especially set aside for bird protective work. On this intensive way. Of the 100 specially constructed nesting boxes on this area 90 per cent are said to be occupied by birds each year. Feeding stations and baths are also maintained, one of the latter being so constructed that the weather by the heat of of kerosene lamps beneath it, while blocks of wood and depths to accommodate different species of birds. Darmstadt has placed some 6000 nesting boxes in its woods, of which between 80 per cent, and 90 per cent are occupied and bathed stations for birds and planted two areas with special shrubs adapted to nesting for birds. Forests are planted in young plant-form platforms for the nests of birds that nest naturally in shrubs and trees, after the method devised and practiced by Baron Hans von Berlepsch on his estate at Seebach, Germany. Here to date are about 50 feeding stations. Owing to the comparative novelty of the artificial nesting box, in part to the presence of a root, and in part to the fact that the birds have not been taken readily to the boxes, and a decrease in their numbers will thus be prevented. Then, becoming habituated to these artificial conditions, and increasing as a result of the protection, and encouragement afforded them in other ways, there is good reason to hope that, ultimately, they can be colonized in much larger numbers than are now present under natural conditions in numbers large enough to control as they do in Germany, many of the injurious forest insects.—American Forester.

Essentials in Dairying.

The question that interests all dairy-men is, how can we better our conditions, in other words, increase our profits. How can we do it? In the first place we have got to have confidence in our business. In the second place we have got to put something into that business. We cannot expect to get something out of a business proposition unless we put something into that business. We have got to adjust ourselves to our conditions, and have a thorough practical knowledge of our business to the smallest detail. Also a determination to overcome all difficulties. The time has been when dairymen could buy cows cheaper than they could raise them. That time is past. There is no question but what the right kind of a dairy cow properly handled, will make a profit. The question is where and how to get them. If we have cows someone has got to raise them. The milkman who sells home milk is not the best fitted to raise his own cows, but he is in a position to pay good prices for cows that have quality. There are hundreds of farms in the state of Maine that are adapted to some kind of stock growing, that are practically lying idle at the present time. What we need most are young men with a liking for the business of farming, and a desire to help build up the agricultural interests of the state of Maine. The young men must be equipped with a thorough practical business training and a knowledge of the work they are to do. In other words they must learn the business of farming. The young man who has a liking for dairying and a desire to grow up and develop a valuable, profitable herd of dairy cows, must remember that it will require years of study and hard work to complete that task, but it has been done, is being done and will continue to be done by men with a determination to do things. There is something more needed in this work. These young men must have some money to work with.

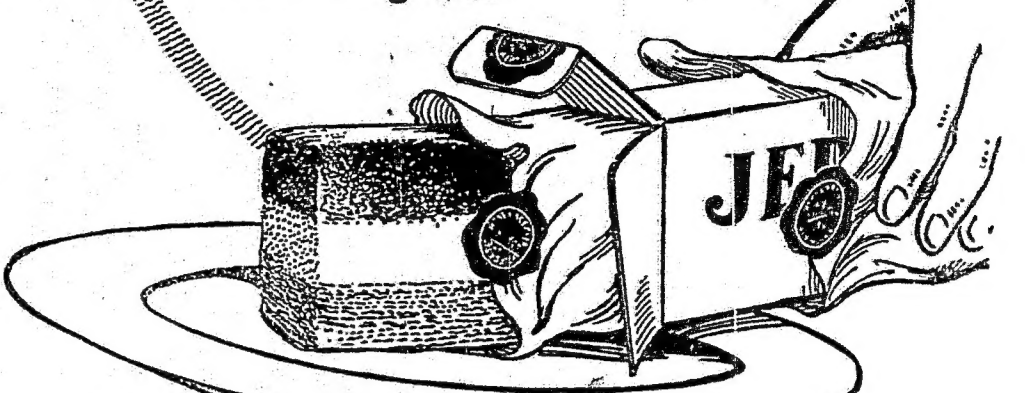

What has been the condition in our state in years past? A great many farmers by working early and late, and denying their families every comfort, have saved a few hundred dollars, or possibly a thousand or two. What has become of this money? Has it gone to build up a better herd of cattle; to build a silo; to underdrain the land, or add comforts to the farm home? No, in the majority of cases it has gone to the savings bank to receive a dividend of three and one-half or four per cent, eventually to go west or south and be invested in some great enterprise in some other section of the country. Under such conditions could a young man or even a bright, able father did not take up business that his investment his hard earned dollars in promoting and building up that business. But the scene has changed, and today we see scattered over this grand old state of Maine happy, prosperous farm homes, managed by men who have had confidence in the business, men who have found out that farming is a business, and in order to get something out, one must put something in. What has brought about this change? In a majority of cases a son, home-farm, or has bought a farm of his own and with the aid of new ideas and better business methods has brought the business up to a point where they can declare a dividend on the amount invested. The fact before us is that there are less cows in the state today than there were a year ago, and with the demand there is for good dairy cows also beef, it surely needs no argument to show that growing of live stock is a good, profitable business in the state of Maine today.

The problem that confronts us at the present time, is how to get the money that rightfully belongs in the state of Maine, back into the hands of good live Maine farmers producing something that our markets are calling for, that are willing to pay a price, that will ensure a good profit. We dairymen and farmers of the state as a whole, regardless of whether they are potato growers, fruit growers, or breeders of live stock, we owe it to ourselves and our sons to the state that we can so manage our business, that we can stand up and say, "I am a dairyman, and by so doing we have not only added to the wealth of our state, and have helped to make it a brighter, happier, better state in which to live. We have our College of Agriculture. Able men at the head of the different departments are all working to educate and reach. The extension work which is being carried on in different sections of the state, by the College of Agriculture, is bound to be one of the greatest help that the farmers of Maine have ever had. Our department of Agriculture, headed by a commissioner who is not only able, but anxious to do all in his power to build up the agricultural interests of the state farmers of Maine. Many secondary schools are teaching agriculture, and by agricultural knowledge in the minds of our boys and girls of the State of Maine. With all the assistance we have in sight at this time, there never was so favorable an outlook for the farmers of Maine, especially for the breeders of live stock, as there is at the present time. And now, let us have faith and confidence in our business and a determination to learn farming, talk farming, live farming and work to promote and build up the agricultural interest in our state, until Maine is the leading agricultural state in this country. L. E. MCINTYRE.

Many people are now roughing it in camps supplied with springs beds, easy chairs, and servants to do all the cooking.

Ask Any Sickle Smoker Why

he sticks to Sickle plug and slices off each pipeful as he needs it, when he could get tobacco already cut up, in packages. He'll tell you, "because the Sickle way is the only way to get fresh tobacco, that smokes cool and sweet, and doesn't bite the tongue." He knows.

Tobacco that is cut up at the factory gets dried up on its way to you. Result—it burns fast and hot, and "bites." When you cut your own tobacco off the Sickle plug, you are well repaid for a minute's work by fresh tobacco—because all the flavor and moisture are pressed into the plug and held in by the natural leaf wrapper.

OLD FOLKS FIND NEW REMEDY RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Relieves Backache and Bladder Disorders After A Few Doses Are Taken

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses, backache, rheumatism, and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life. The new discovery, Croxone, overcomes all such disorders because it reaches right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; and makes the kidneys filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood and drive it out of the system. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find it different from all other remedies. It starts to work immediately and more than a few doses are seldom required to relieve even the most chronic, obstinate cases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for restoring the lifeless organs to health and strength and ridding the system of every particle of uric acid, and you can take it with the utmost confidence, that nothing on earth will so quickly cure such conditions. You can obtain an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

Ancients Used Sun Dial by Day, Water Clock at Night.

What time is it? Ask that question nowadays you simply reach in your pocket and pull out your watch. If you are not fortunate enough to be the possessor of a watch you glance up at a friendly tower or into a nearby window at a clock.

Incidentally, you think that you tell time by figures on the dial of watch or clock, but you don't. You merely get a mental impression from the position of the hands. It was figured out long ago that public clocks are not read by figures. In Philadelphia people know that the Philadelphia city hall clock has no numerals on its dial. There is not even a clock in the tower, the hands being moved every minute by air pressure, which is regulated by a clock far below.

It's a far simpler proposition, finding out what time it is nowadays, compared with what it was when the world was young. Primitive man used to set up a stick and mark its shadows, so that a party coming behind might estimate the distance of those ahead by the shadow's altered position. When a man's shadow shortened until it seemed to be fixed, it was then known that it was noon, when it began to lengthen it was just past noon.

The sun dial was far ahead of the man's shadow method, but the sun dials were only available during the hours of the day when the sun was shining.

In ancient times the sun dials were largely in use. The circular rows of stone used by the Durids, it is thought, were used to mark the sun's path. The Greeks were perfectly acquainted with the method of making sun dials with inclined "styles," and the obelisks are supposed to have been used to cast sun shadows.

In the ruins of Pompeii has been found, in one of the gardens, a sun dial which looks as if the position of the earth's axis and the plane of the Equator must have been known to the maker.

Modern sun dials are made much after the same fashion.

A dial consists of two parts—the style, or gnomon, usually the edge of a plate of metal, made parallel to the earth's axis, and pointing towards the pole, and the dial plane, which may be of any hard substance, and on which are marked the directions of the shadows for several hours of the day, their halves, quarters, etc.

Dials are given different names, according to the positions which they are constructed to occupy. The dial is called a horizontal dial when the dial plane is on the plane of the horizon; a vertical dial whose plane is parallel to the equator is called an Equatorial dial. There are also North dials, South dials, East dials, West dials, polar dials, declining dials, etc.

The desire to mark the time of day, led to the invention of the water clock, or "clepsydra," which measured time by the amount of water which escaped from a small hole in a level of water.

Such clocks are said to have been in use in China in 1100 B. C. The kinds of water clock have been in use. In one the water was allowed to escape from one vessel to another. It was used in the courts of Athens, where a speaker was allowed a certain amount of water for his arguments, the quantity depending on the importance of the debate at hand. Plato is said to have invented the more complicated form, while others gave the honor to Ctesibius of Alexandria. The water was allowed to run at a uniform rate in this form, into a receptacle in which was marked a scale of hours. Both forms were widely used in the old days.

In Canton, China, is to be seen today what is known by natives as the "clock of the street arch." It consists of four copper jars built in masonry and forming a stair-like structure. Water commences at the top jar and drops down until it reaches the lowest jar, which has a solid bottom. In the lowest jar is placed a bamboo stick, which indicates the height of the water and thus the time of day. It takes 12 hours for the water in the top jar to drip into the bottom jar, and the clock is set again by merely emptying the contents from the bottom jar into the top jar. This clock is said to be over 300 years old.

Sand glasses for measuring time were made as soon as the art of blowing glass had been perfected by the people of Byzantium. These glasses were used for timing speeches, but there were most important uses as at sea. In order that one's position at sea might be figured, it was important in those early days to know the vessel's speed. The earliest method was to throw over a heavy piece of wood of a shape that resisted being dragged through the sea, and with a string tied to it. The string had not in it and the block of wood was that when one of them ran through one's fingers in a half minute measured by a sand glass it indicated that the vessel was going at speed of one nautical mile in an hour.

An hour glass is made of glass and consists of two bulbs united by a narrow neck. One of the bulbs is nearly filled with dry sand fine enough to run through the orifice in the neck, and quantity of the sand is just as much as can run through the orifice in an hour, if the instrument is to be an hour glass; in a minute, if a minute glass. Defects are possible with this system because of the effects of heat and cold in contracting or expanding the orifice, and because of the variations in the dryness of the sand. Cooks still use the hour glass in fixing the time for the proper boiling of eggs.

The next step was the construction of a time indicator whose hands were moved by the action of falling weights, instead of that of falling water. When this step was taken and the first true clock constructed, it was uncertain.

The De Vick clock, made in 1364, was a good piece of work. In fact, since the year 1700 no important invention has been added to clocks and watches. This means a good deal when it is realized that the last 800 years have given us more inventions than all previously known history.

The De Vick clock, which was set up in the tower of Chares V of France, was constructed on the mechanical principle as formulated by E. E. Marsh as follows: "That the power stored up in a raised weight or coiled spring shall be communicated to a train of wheels which are set revolving, and that the force or motion shall be cut up into a succession of minute but equal impulses converting a rotary into a vibratory motion." The last and the quickest wheel of the train shall have its teeth so formed that they are caught and escape alternately, and hence the wheel is called the "escape wheel," and from its resemblance to a crown, the "crown wheel." The bar and staff, which, with its projections, catch and release the teeth, is termed the "escapement," and it is through this device that the rotary in converted into the backward and forward motion.

Now, how long will it be before the clock of today will be considered crude and ridiculous as a method for measuring time?—Chicago Tribune.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been tested forty years. Get it today.

DENMARK.

Mrs. William H. Cogan of Waverley, Mass., is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Horace A. Orcutt. Mrs. Cogan arrived on Monday and expects to spend a month here. Before her marriage last October she spent three months with her cousin, Mrs. Orcutt, and had a most delightful time.

Edith and Jennie Orcutt are planning on returning to Waverley before the fall term of school begins.

Last week Denmark had a treat. Harrington & Co. vaudeville artists, slight of hand performers, etc., gave the people of this town a wee bit of excitement. The most popular young lady, who proved to be Susie Wales, received a very handsome silver water pitcher. Friday evening Mrs. and Mr. Albert Wentworth captured the prize for the best walking couple. Mrs. Wentworth received a silver sugar bowl and one dozen silver spoons.

Mrs. Herbert Keith of Conway, N. H., is spending the week with Mrs. Horace A. Orcutt. George Orcutt of Conway spent the week-end at the Orcutt home.

William Darcy and family have changed their address. They left town a week ago and have taken up their residence in Cornish.

Jesse Kennerston, who has been working in Conway the past two weeks, came down to the dance at Denmark on Saturday. He planned to leave for Conway on Monday morning.

Mrs. Palmer Fessenden is very low at this writing.
Aunt Jane Colby of Portland, but formerly of Denmark is visiting here.

Mrs. Scott Wentworth is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Albert Robbins of Hale. Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson is keeping house for Mrs. Wentworth during her absence.

C. E. Cobb has recently purchased a new auto. We understand Mr. Cobb has over 500 board feet and with the smaller boarding houses and camps well filled no wonder the town is full of strangers. "Camp Aconae" has 85 and "Camp Wabunaki" has 20, all girls.

The Harrington Moving Picture and Vaudeville Company have been here through the week at L. O. O. F. Hall, where they have had a large and appreciative audience each evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Wentworth moved into their new house July 18 and Wednesday evening about 35 of their neighbors and friends gave them a surprise party. A very enjoyable evening was passed. Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth are among our most popular young people and we are very glad to welcome them in our village. They moved from their farm at East Denmark a little over a year ago and since that time have been uppper village.

The "Galahad Club" from Camp Oatka, East Sebago, composed of 33 boys, spent two nights recently at W. W. Berry's in the meantime tramping to the top of Mt. Pleasant and back in one day. These boys are no strangers at Mr. Berry's, however, as this is the third or fourth season here. The services on the lawn at evening were especially fine, consisting camp songs and prayer.

White Satin Bread STILL STANDS THE TEST

Not only of the New York experts, but of the LOCAL GOOD JUDGES of the best in Bread

Several cases have come to our notice in the last few days. Here is one:--

One prominent Grocer of Norway, a dealer in White Satin Bread exclusively, having friends to tea, decided to test the merits of WHITE SATIN BREAD against one other much advertised bread, furnished him by a fellow Grocer.

His company were asked to select the bread most pleasing to them. White Satin Bread STOOD THE TEST, it was declared THE BEST, by the company present.

This Grocer is a firm believer in supporting home products, when backed by such quality as WHITE SATIN BREAD, and by so doing, is daily adding new Customers to his list of satisfied bread buyers.

As to the comparative freshness of the different breads on this market, compare distances running time from points of shipment, with one half hour from our oven to your table, and you have the result. There is no disputing this point. We say Do not buy Stale bread, insist on your Grocer furnishing it strictly fresh. That means

Mr. and Mrs. David Cole are being visited by his daughter from Massachusetts.
The friends of Lura Morrill gave her a variety shower, July 25th, in honor of her approaching marriage to Wilbur Swan of South Paris.

Ida Thomas visited relatives in Peru, recently.

Maine Has the Elements.
Maine has all the natural elements which enter into the manufacture of the finest grades of plate glass, yet there isn't a glass factory within the borders of the State. The nearest approach to it is a shop in Portland where glass manufactured elsewhere is stained and wrought into beautiful windows, screens and canopies. Maine should make glass. It is a profitable industry, not only to the owners, but to the wage earners, the merchants and the property owners in the vicinity of the factories.

Down in Cumberland, Maryland, is the Potomac Glass Company, capitalized at $24,000, that is doing a business good enough so that it declared a dividend the other day of 92 per cent. The plant runs day and night and has orders to keep it running that way for a year. In 1910 the business declared a dividend of 10 per cent.; the following year, a dividend of 32 per cent.; the next year, 62 per cent. and last year, 72 per cent.

Maine can secure the funds to employ just such men if they want to join hands in doing it. Maine can get the factories and Maine cities and towns will get the benefit. Every property owner will find that his property is worth more. He will be able to sell it for more and rent it for more. The farmer's son who wants to leave the farm will find an opportunity in his home state. The city man's son who wants to farm will find a ready market for his products and will have a better guarantee of ultimate success.

The Develop Maine Movement offers the means to get these factories. It will have an expert business getter to follow up on the engineer's reports with data regarding freight rates, cost of living, help, taxes, climate and social conditions. Every man should join this Movement for it means something and will accomplish something.

Bound Over.
James J. Sargent of East Hiram was before Judge John E. Merrill of the Municipal Court in Portland, July 20th, on charge of assault, brought in connection with an attack made on Deputy Sheriff Eugene E. Black of West Baldwin on the night of July 3d.

It is claimed that Deputy Black went to the Grange Hall at West Baldwin in his official capacity to preserve peace and order if necessary. About 12:30 he stood led out of the hall and soon was met by five men. It is claimed Sargent came toward him and asked him what he was doing there, looking for trouble? Sargent told him he had no right there and to get into the hall.

At this point he was hit and became unconscious and it was some time before he recovered. Sargent, it is claimed, disappeared after the trouble and finally disguised as a woman went to Portland in an auto and gave himself up.

After the hearing, probable cause was found and he was bound over to the Grand Jury of the September term of the Supreme Court with the sum of $3,000 which was furnished by his mother, Mrs. Annie Sargent, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wagon of Portland.

WEBB'S MILLS.

My First Auto Ride and Journeys of Long Ago.

MRS. SARAH E. BATES BARTLETT, West Paris, Maine.

"Vessels large may venture more, But little boats should keep near shore."
A kind friend came with her son in her automobile to take me to their lovely home in Norway, and I had my first ride that beautiful July day. I was sure I should be afraid, it looked so big and powerful, and as we glided out of the yard, I held fast to the seat, and they told me afterwards that I talked as fast as possible, I was so excited, and exhilarated with the rapid motion of the car, and the swiftly passing trees and houses. But as no harm came to us I settled down to enjoy it all.

I passed the place where I had lived so long, sixty years ago, and my thoughts were busy with the past. Often I had been over this same road, but I didn't know the place, all had changed so much. At that time, I had not seen an electric car, railroad, automobile, bicycle, sewing machine or a telephone.

Mr. Waterhouse drove the stage from South Paris to Portland with four horses and Mr. Galison drove three horses and a coach to Letter B. from South Paris. When anyone wanted to drive a long distance to make a visit to some dear friend, the two wheeled chaises, and a long and sometimes tiresome journey was before them, but nevertheless they enjoyed it just the same.

I can remember riding to meeting on horseback, my mother was on the horse, too. I had a seat just back of her, with one arm around her. Mother would say to me quite often, "Hold on to the crupper." "Sadie," I dare say I was as happy then as any of the young ladies riding along so gaily in their nice automobiles, in these swiftly passing days. I had a bonnet on too, and white dimity sleeves, they were straight and tied above my elbows. Sometimes I would walk to church with bare feet till I was most there, then I would sit down by a pine stump, wipe my feet carefully and put on my little white stockings and slippers, and go to the church "all clean."

I happy then, you may say? Yes, I was, a dear mother beside me, and I have never been happier in my life.

Since then I have ridden in various ways, have been on the ocean in big steamers and little ones, too, in small row boats and even in a "dug out" or log boat, but to pass rapidly and easily along, a little boat I was ever in could compare with a birch bark canoe.

I have ridden in wagons with springs, and in wagons without springs, the old steady ox cart, now nearly out of style, but that was no enjoyment in such a ride? Indeed there was not, if we had to jog along some and be shaken up, and could not get there quite as quick. The roads were rough and narrow, but they are making them wider and smoother, and people can ride in their autos from Boston to Paris in eight hours, "the feeling of a day." "A picture of human life." It reminds me of a story found in an old English Reader, said the hermit,—"Remember my son, that human life is the journey of a day. We rise in the morning of youth, full of vigor and expectation, go now my son to repose, commit yourself to the care of Omnipotence, and when the morning call again to toil, begin anew thy journey and thy life."

Hardly had these memories chased themselves through my mind, till we had passed Trap Corner, Saco Falls, South Paris village, and I found myself safely at the Chick homestead in Norway. A pleasant visit, a happy dinner hour, a little rest, then once more we were seated in the auto, stopping to make a little call on the way, and I was home, having made a twenty mile journey. Well, it was worth living eighty-four years to have such a pleasant day.

STATE OF MAINE.
County of Oxford, ss:
To the Honorable Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court next to be held in South Paris within and for said County, on the second Tuesday of October, A. D. 1914.

Lillie J. Kerr, of said County, wife of James R. Kerr, respectfully represents; that she was lawfully married to the said James R. Kerr in Portland, in the County of Cumberland, on the tenth day of August, A. D. 1912, by a Justice of the Peace in and for said Cumberland County; that they lived together as man and wife until the twelfth day of March, A. D. 1913; that your Libellant has always conducted herself towards her husband as a faithful and affectionate wife; that on the said twelfth day of March, and on divers days and times between that date and her said marriage, the Libellee was guilty of cruel and abusive treatment and of extreme cruelty to your said Libellant; that for a long time prior to and continuously since that said March 12th, 1913, the said Libellee though of sufficient ability and being able to labor, has refused and neglected to provide any or suitable maintenance for her; that there is no collusion between your Libellant and the said James R. Kerr to obtain a divorce; and since the said twelfth day of March, A. D. 1913, the Libellee has departed for and resides at her residence; that her residence is still unknown to her and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Wherefore your Libellant prays that the bonds of matrimony between her and her said husband be dissolved by divorce. Dated at Lewiston the fifteenth day of June, 1914.
Signed LILLIE J. KERR.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this fifteenth day of June, 1914.
CHARLES B. HOSMER, Justice of the Peace.

STATE OF MAINE.
County of Oxford, ss:
Supreme Judicial Court, in Vacation. (Seal)
Paris, July 9, A. D. 1914.
Upon the foregoing Libel, Ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said James R. Kerr, Libellee, to appear before the Justice of our Supreme Judicial Court to be held at Paris, within and for the County of Oxford, on the second Tuesday of October, A. D. 1914, by publishing an attested copy of said Libel, and this order thereon, three weeks successively in the Norway Advertiser, a newspaper printed in Norway, in our County of Oxford, the last publication to be 80 days at least prior to said second Tuesday of October, 1914, that he may then and then in our said Court appear and show cause, if any he have, why the prayer of said Libellant should not be granted.

HARRISON.

James Wendell Weston.

This aged and widely known citizen of Harrison passed away on Saturday, July 25, aged 77 years, 9 months and 5 days. He was the third and youngest son of James and Sukey (Spurr) Weston. His ancestors were among the earliest settlers of Oldfield in the latter part of the 18th century.

Mr. Weston has resided all his life on the paternal homestead, as the main-stay and support, with the cheerful assistance of his faithful wife, of his aged parents who have been dead many years. He was educated in the public schools and at Bridgton Academy and entered upon active business life as a teacher in the common schools and was engaged in mercantile pursuits before he settled permanently as a farmer and local business man in which sphere he had extensive connections.

He married in 1863 Sarah Robie of Harrison who died the same year. In 1868 he married for his second wife, Sarah Anne Chase of Oldfield who survives him. He is also survived by three children, Mrs. Annie Ray (Weston) Twitchell of Berlin, N. H., Albert W. Weston of Bolster's Mills and Lester who is unmarried and has always resided at home.

Mr. Weston was possessed of an affectionate nature and his domestic life was unusually bright and happy. He was musically gifted and in early life was many years a member of the church choir as a bass singer. He was liberal in his religious convictions, but a decided Republican in politics. Socially he was popular and his independence of thought caused him to be a dominating factor in the family circle and in other relations of society.

The funeral of Mr. Weston was held on Tuesday, July 28 at his late residence and was largely attended by a large assemblage of citizens and relatives from other towns. Rev. W. S. Carne of Brooks was the officiating clergyman, whose service was especially gratifying and comforting to the bereaved family.

A large number of members of Harrison Lodge, No. 41, I. O. O. F., in regalia were present and participated in the obsequies. Jessie Ricker and Mrs. Wilcox sang several hymns in duet, with organ accompaniment by Ethel Whitney. The interment was in the Stuart's Corner cemetery.

PORTER.

Two Accidents.

Two of our neighbors met with accidents, one serious, Thursday morning. Sheridan Fox was helping Curtis Chapman unload some hay in his barn. When Fox started to come down the ladder he missed his footing and fell to the floor, a distance of twelve feet, striking against the top rail of the hay rack as he fell.

Fox received a bruise on his left leg. After he had recovered from the shock of the fall he was carried to his home and was able to be at his work the following day.

Harry Burbank met with a more serious accident on Friday. While hauling a load of hay from the field one of the horses threw the bridle off his head.

Burbank was on top of the load and did not notice the horses when they made a sharp turn throwing the top of load together with Burbank to the ground. He landed on his feet with such force that it paralyzed his limbs.

A physician was hastily summoned. On Sunday a little strength had returned to his legs, so that he could move them some.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cartland were visitors at Brownfield this week. Mr. Cartland received a load of fish from Portland.

Jane Trafton's Startling Episode

One bright and sunny morning early in June as Jane Trafton was on her way across a pasture laden with the early spring flowers, and admiring the beauties of nature which were all about her, she chanced to spy one of her enemies, the faithful old family cow which being in the habit of greeting her friends, immediately proceeded to make the acquaintance of Jane.

On seeing "Molly" coming at an unusual rate of speed and feeling sure that trouble lay in her "green-eyed monster", Jane was possessed with an inclination to make a rapid exit and take refuge in the adjoining lot. For a time it seemed as if that old cow fence could never be reached. Nearer and nearer it grew, but faster and faster Molly, the cow, was approaching and pursuing the intruder.

At last the rickety old fence was reached and Jane seated with her few parcels and a pail for milk was nicely lodged on the top of the fence when suddenly there was a creaking and Jane was precipitated on the other side. Happening to land in a comfortable spot she drew a long breath of relief in winning the race, when looking up and hearing a voice that said "A Demon". Surprised and filled with awe at the voice she calmly replied, "O, no its no demon its only an angel sent to show you the error of your way."

The situation was extremely embarrassing, the race with the cow, the unlady-like means of transportation over the fence and all in the presence of a man. What next!

After collecting herself a little, Jane looked around her, there was another man, only a few feet away sitting besides a pine tree eating a lunch, and that man, oh, no he was not a stranger, nor a friend but merely a passing acquaintance in a distant city, a man who would have been a friend of Jane's had circumstances altered the case. O, that awful situation, what was she to do.

"O," says the voice, "I see you are Miss Trafton this time, are you not? You are the very girl I met in Bangor a few months ago and you refused to recognize me, and before then we had met in another small town."

Is not your name Miss Jane Trafton! asked the indignant young man.

"Sir I beg your pardon, we have never met, I never was introduced to you, I don't know you," replied the young lady still seated where she had lighted from the breaking fence, "and furthermore hasn't a woman the right to change her name if she so wishes?" continued Jane.

"Yes, I suppose so," replied the excited cyclist. "But what name might it be changed to," he continued. Mrs. Leighton was the prompt reply. "I might have known," he spoke half aloud, that was the name on the door plate. You probably didn't know it but I followed you home that day, and that is the name I found on the door.

Jane thinking she had won the day by remembering the name on the door and knowing he came and looked, began collecting her bundles together in preparation to make a more graceful departure than her arrival had been, when this would be young Lochinvar burst forth "Where are you going?" "I am going to the farm house yonder, and I must go now she said in a tone more stern.

"Well I'll go with you" was the volunteered response.

"Sir, she said, I guess not, I much prefer to go alone, you cannot go!" Jane was a little excited, coming along all the dignity at her disposal, followed the winding pathway out of his sight to the farm house. After a short rest from her exciting adventure she reached her friends who were anxiously waiting for her at a cottage at the pond where ahead her friend were enjoying the camp life far away from the turmoil of the bustling city.

WEST FRYEBURG.

Meeting of Literary Club.
The Stirling Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Abbie Andrews, July 15th. Nearly all the members were present as the meeting was the deferred annual meeting and a change in the officers was decided on account of the inability of the late president to serve another term at this time. The vote for Mrs. Kate Meserve for president was unanimous as also that of Mrs. Edith McKeen for vice president. Mr. Emma Walker had the full vote for treasurer and secretary.

The business being expediently accomplished, the remainder of the time was given to discussion of plans for future meetings of the club until time for adjournment, when the club was treated with a serving of ice cream and cake.

The club parts with its former president with regret, but realizes that their loss is the neighborhood's gain in that the school in No. 8, gets the services of an excellent teacher.

Mrs. Kate Meserve is entertaining Mary Leonard and Bessie O'Neil of Boston, Mass., for a few weeks. They are annual guests and make many friends in the neighborhood.

Mrs. J. H. Hardy, who has been in very poor health, rides out and is gaining her former health and efficiency.

Everybody is busy haying or hoeing, or in combat with the pests of the air and the earth, such as potato beetles, grasshoppers and other too numerous to mention.

—In addition to these remarkable bargains already enumerated we have many odd lots of men's and women's Boots and Oxfords which will be disposed of at extremely low prices. We expect this sale to be the largest ever and ask your careful consideration of the many great values offered at such absurdly low prices. It will pay you to come a little out of your way to give us a call. Remember—"First come—first served." Come early and have a greater assortment to choose from.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our thanks to the many friends who in the time of our deep sorrow have kindly offered their sympathy and help. We are especially thankful to the kind friends who have been so generous in their contributions to the funeral expenses. We are also indebted to the many friends who have been so kind as to write to us and let us know of their sympathy. We are also indebted to the many friends who have been so kind as to write to us and let us know of their sympathy. We are also indebted to the many friends who have been so kind as to write to us and let us know of their sympathy.
